Paradise of Coquettes,
A poem, in nine Parts.
econd edition of this elegant Poem ublished and for sale by the Sub-r.

Paradise of Coquettes;
character in which the poet pro-eak, is that of the POET OF IAN. He is supposed to be a og woman, and woman only, and sing her, 'on adventures of which the heroine, and on charms and which it is the whole history of auty to have exercised with failure cess.'

incontestable merits, and the assicare which he has bestowed upon em, deserve the warmest praise.
Quarterly Review, Oct. 1814. have here a little volume which e fairly regarded as a prodigy in e of quarto ballads, romances, he, and sentimental simplicity. It is the best and most brilliant imita-Pope, that has appeared since the of that great writer; with all his polish, and nicely-balanced version, as well as his sarcasm and witty
e. He is always at home—always and entertaining.

satire is polished and yet pun-versification, in particular, is alnvariably flowing & harmonious.
Edinburgh Review, Feb. 1815.
vein of polite irony runs through Paradise of Coquettes' which was r to the writers of the age of Anne george the First, but has been dis-in making other modern improve-by our contemporaries."

THE SPRING OF THE YEAR.

TERRAGE the wintry winds have spent;
Earth is no more by tempests rent;
To skies more mild, and seasons warm,
Encombs the Genius of the Storm;
High soars the sun, and green around,
Are vale and plain, and mountain ground.
Deep buried 'neath their snowy veil,
What time the frost's chill powers assail;
Mark how the tiny plants appear,
To hail of life another year;
Fleas'd that so blest a boon is given,
Grateful they send their scents to heaven.

From flow'ring shrubs, and leafing trees,
That waving blithe, salute the breeze,
Hark! how the little warblers sing
Their anthems to advancing spring:
Their is a charm in Nature's voice,
For Nature's children all rejoice.

But chief should we (for whom are made
The sunny plains, and bowers of shade;
The various kinds of herbs, and roots,
And fragrant flowers, and cheering fruits)
With far sublimer pleasure view
The verdure of the year renew.

Man, when his life's short summer's past,
Shall yield to wintry death, at last:
No sun shall light his eyes, or warm
Affections cold, or frozen form:
As the brown leaf, he droops, and dies,
And seems, as if no more to rise!

Yet him again shall light illumine,
Through the dark caverns of the tomb;
Not always shall death's tempests roll
Victorious, o'er the immortal soul,
For that awaits—what Time shall bring—
A long, an EVERLASTING SPRING.

From the N. Y. Evening Post.

PORTRAITS

Of the Bachelor, and the Married Man, contrasted.

A Bachelor is a kind of whimsical being, which nature never intended to create. He was formed out of the odds & ends of what materials were left, after the great work was over. Unluckily for him, the finer passions are all mixed up in the composition of these creatures, intended for social enjoyments. What remains for the Bachelor, is hardly enough to rub round the crusty mould into which he is thrown. Some seasoning, that he may not be quite insipid must be substituted in the stead of more valuable ingredients: so, in dame Nature, tosses self love without weight or measure, a kind of understanding, that is fit for no other use; a sprinkling of wisdom, which turns acid from the sour dispositions of the vessels in which it is contained; and the whole composition, is concluded with an immoderate portion of oddities. Thus formed, thus finished, a Bachelor is popped into the world! Mere lumber, without a possibility of being happy himself or essentially contributing to the happiness of others. His only business, is to keep himself quiet. He gets up to lay down and lays down to get up. No tender impressions enliven his waking hours; no agreeable reveries disturb his drowsy slumbers. If ever he speaks the language of sensibility, he speaks it on the excellence of some favorite dish or the choice liquors with which his cellars abound. On such subjects, he feels the raptures of a lover. As for the pace of a Bachelor, he would hardly mend it, to get out of a storm, though that storm were to threaten a deluge; but show him a woman who is entitled to the compliment of his hat, and he will shuffle on, as if he were walking for a great wager. His house keeper, or his landlubber, he can talk to without reserve; but any other of the sex whose condition is above an useful dependent is his terror. A Coffee-house is his Sanctum Sanctorum, against bright eyes and dazzling complexions; here he lounges out half his days—at home he sits alone, at his unsocial meals; and when this passion is pleased, he has no other passion to gratify. Such is a Bachelor! Such is the life of a Bachelor! What becomes of him after death, I am not casuist enough to determine.

NOW, FOR A MARRIED MAN
The felicity of a Married Man, never stands still, it perpetually flows and increases in its passage—it is supplied from various channels; it depends more on others than himself. From participation proceed the most extatic enjoyments of the Married Man. By an Union with the gentlest, most polished, most beautiful part of the creation, his mind is harmonized, his manners softened, his soul animated by the tenderest, liveliest sentiments. Love, gratitude, and universal benevolence, mix in all his ideas—the house of a married man, is his paradise. He never leaves it without regret—never returns to it, but with gladness. The friend of his soul, the wife of his bosom, welcomes his approach with susceptibility; joy flushes her cheeks, and mutual are their transports. Infants, lovely as the spring, climb about his knees, and contend which shall catch the envied kiss of paternal fondness. Smiling plenty, under the guardianship of economy, is seen in every department of his family—Generosity stands porter at the door—Liberality president at his table—and social Mirth, gives to Time its most pleasing motion. To the existence of a Married Man, there is no termination—when death overtakes him he is only translated from one Heaven to another; his glory is immortalized and his children's children represent him on earth to the latest generation.

One day, a sailor of ordinary whim sauntered into a tavern, resolved to try a new experiment; he observed the landlord rigidly requiring the deposit of the money before he would deliver the liquor—not appalled by this precautionary measure, although he was perfectly "stiverish," Jack carelessly walked to the bar, when the following dialogue ensued.

JACK. Landlord, have you got any crackers?

Landlord. Yes, sir.

JACK. Well, let's have sixpence worth.

The landlord's caution was lulled into security by the sailor's not asking for liquor, and he delivered the crackers without first requiring the money.

JACK, looking at and turning the crackers in his hand. Now that I have got 'em I don't think I can eat 'em. Landlord won't you give me something else for these crackers?

Landlord. Yes, sir, what do you wish instead?

JACK. How much whiskey will you give me for 'em?

Landlord. A gill.

JACK. It's a bargain—here take the crackers.

The landlord gave JACK the whiskey, which he drank and walked towards the door.

Landlord. Stop, sir, you hav'n't paid me for the whiskey.

JACK. Did'n't I give you the crackers for it?

Landlord. Very well—but you didn't pay me for the crackers.

JACK. Why, hav'n't you got your crackers back again, you landlubber and what more do you want?

London Paper.

A dashing young buck was tripping along a very narrow dirty street in Boston, the other day, after a long spell of rainy weather, his foot slipping he fell plump in the mud, all sitting—at the moment he was attempting to rise, with his hands under his hunches, (grinning horribly aghast) a Jack tar coming athwart his haunches, exclaimed, (sheering off) "pray Shipmate keep your sitting—don't rise for me."

A MORSEL OF CONSOLATION.

Mr. Southwick, editor of the Albany Register, thus consoles Mr. Secretary Tillotson, for the loss of his office [Secretary of State]:—

"In this removal the young men of this state have an impressive lesson. It may teach them to stick to their professional studies and pursuits—that private industry which is the most sure and permanent source of prosperity—instead of wasting the morning of life in politics and party strife, and relying for support upon public honors and emoluments which are as fleeting as parties are changeable or inconstant. When we look upon independent mechanics, farmers, merchants, physicians or lawyers, who owe their independence to their industry in their several callings, or professions, and compare their situation with that of men of whom many could be pointed out, who have spent the morning of their lives in politics, and wasted their energies in supporting a party till they have disqualified themselves for any private business, how enviable is the situation of the former, how entirely the reverse is that of the latter!—In the present case the victim is yet in the prime of life, and may return to his profession with a fair prospect of his success; and he who would not rather rival a hamilton or an Emmet at the bar, than hold any office in the gift of any government, loses sight of the most for what in general is the least honorable fame.

Latest From England.

By Captain Tracy, of the ship Galen, which arrived yesterday in 27 days from England, we were favored with London papers to the 27th ult. a Plymouth paper of the 29th, and a Sherbourne paper of the 31st, containing London dates to the 29th.

The ship Lancaster, Jackson, from Liverpool, for Philadelphia, ran down an English West Indiman, from Glasgow, off Holy Head—took off the crew, 15 in number, and put into Ireland, with loss of bowsprit, foremast, and bows stove in.

An American ship had arrived at Liverpool from New-York, which sailed about 3d March, supposed to be the Hibernia.

Brig Mary, captain Wilson, of and from Salem, was abandoned on the 27th Feb. lat. 40, 20, lon. 23, 30, after being out 40 days from Martinique, and taken off the wreck by the English E. India Company ship Cornwall, capt. Tousant, from China, bound for London, and arrived there 13th March; crew all safe, but in a weak and low state. Captain Wilson is a passenger in the Galen.

LONDON, March 23.
The Triumfante, Spanish brig, with 549 slaves on board, was captured by the boats of H. M. colonial brig Prince Regent, and carried into Sierra Leone, 26th Jan. but about 100 of the slaves died before she arrived there. The P. R. also captured the Portuguese schr. Rodore, from Gayenne, in the river Lopez, with 80 slaves, which she likewise carried into the above port on the same day.

Extract of a letter dated Sierra Leone Feb. 6.

"There is on the Western coast of this continent, a schooner under Carthaginian colors. She has lately plundered a brig belonging to this colony of part of her cargo, amounting in value to about 4000l. sterling. Com. Yeo was here when the brig arrived, and has since sailed on a cruise down the coast."

A letter from Sierra Leone, Jan. 25 mentions the capture in the Rio Pongo, on the 1st, of a slave vessel, mounting eight 18 pounders, and 48 men, Am. built, and originally from Boston, but fitted out at Havana, and on her first voyage. She was taken by boarding, by a small English schr. of 3 men and 60 soldiers, with a few seamen. The latter had only two men slightly wounded; the Americans 4. The captain, supercargo, and 10 men, escaped on shore.

We have been favored with letters from the Mauritius, dated Dec. last, by which we learn that the Mosque sloop of war, since her short arrival has captured the schr. Petite Amie, under English colors, from Madagascar, with 144 Africans on board, the Joseph and Zephyr luggers, under English colors, the one with 80 the other with 101 negroes on board; the schr. Helen, under French colors with 158 on board. We had thought that the example of the Tyne would have been decisive; but unless the Felony Law be strongly enforced nothing will prevent a risk, which, if successful, is extremely profitable.

Paris papers to the 24th inst. are received. A commission is appointed to enquire into the state of Martinique.

A great disturbance has occurred at the Theatre Francais at the performance of a tragedy, in which there are many allusions to Bonaparte's present situation. Many persons were wounded. The riot was suppressed by the militia and general arrests were made. The author wishes to remain unknown. The repetition of the play is forbidden.

An Extraordinary council of State is called in Prussia. It is expected to form a constitution and a new system of Finance.

A Swedish writer against Bernadotte's becoming King, has been condemned to death, but fled, and is outlawed.

The Swedes possess 5000 trophies of victories in former times.

Extract of a letter received by the ship Venus, dated London, 17th March, 1817.

"Since my last communication, it has been decided that those British Manufactures which have been charged with a duty of one per cent. upon their exportation to the U. States, are not liable, under the late treaty of commerce, to a higher duty than one half per cent. as by that treaty the U. States with regard to its commercial privilege, is placed upon the footing of the most favoured nation, and only half per cent. duty is levied upon the same goods exported to any of the continental territories. Now, therefore, only half per cent. duty is demanded at the custom-house. This decision will of course support a claim for a return of one half per cent. upon the declared value of such dutiable goods as have been shipped to the U. States since the peace.

"It may also be proper to remark, that the Trinity House are now returning a surcharge of light money levied upon American ships, beyond what British ships were able to pay, which surcharge amounts to about 30l upon a ship of 300 tons.

"It seems to be the intention of government to reduce the duty upon American rice to 7s. 6d. cwt. which is the duty payable upon East India rice, if it would not, during the present state of the country, admit it duty free.

"There is very little American produce in this market of any kind, excepting tobacco; and I have endeavored to quote the prices at which sales can really be effected.

"About 200 casks of pearl ashes, per America, from New-York, have been sold at 74s. for first quality; and here I would call the attention of those whose interests are affected, to the New York inspection. I do not judge from the inspection of the brokers here, but from my own eye. Many of the above casks, I may say more than half of them, which are branded by the New-York inspector 'first sort,' are clearly not of the first quality. The merchant loses at least the value of the freight by not attending to the inspection at home.

"We have no American cotton in this market, and there has not been any here of any consequence for some months.

"A fair average quality of Maryland tobacco about 7 1-2 to 8, & not more.

"American stocks have advanced about 5 per cent. since my last publication. The principal sales are in the 3 per cent. and 6 per cent. new loan.

"With esteem, gentlemen, your obedient servant.

JUNIOUS SMITH."

FROM THE BALTIMORE PATR
Extract of Letters from a friend in Buenos Ayres to his friend in City.

BUENOS AYRES, FEB

In my last letter, I informed you of the progress of gen. SAN MARTIN, who had advanced into Chili, having passed the Cordilleras without opposition, at the head of an army of five thousand men. I have now to state, that we have received the account of an action having been fought between the royalists and the troops of this province, which ended in the total defeat and destruction of the former. The express arrived in town, accompanied by an officer, who brought the colors of the king's troops taken. There were 1000 killed, and 500 taken prisoners, with a general. The Buenos Ayreans have entered the capital, Santiago.

March 1st, 1817.

Chili is gone; it is in the hands of the Patriots, who have carried every thing before them. The last accounts state them to be in Coquimbo, & the royalists flying in every direction. SAN MARTIN writes with all confidence, and they apprehend no farther resistance, the people all being disposed for revolution. The cry is now for a war with the Portuguese, and it is firmly believed by many, that it will be declared immediately.

March 5th, 1817.

We have further accounts, General MARCON, the royal Governor of Chili, with his suite, have been taken at Valparaiso, on the point of embarkation, with two millions of dollars! The patriots have possession of every port on the coast of Chili!

That there will be a war with the Portuguese, I have no doubt. This government in retaliation of some acts of the Portuguese, at Montevideo, have imprisoned all the Portuguese merchants and others at this place.

KINGSTON, (Jam.) March 29.

We learn from an officer belonging to the independent forces, who arrived here in the schr. Minotra, that the chief of the armies of New-Grenada Urdanetta, having had intimation that gen. Morillo was marching for the province of Venezuela, posted himself in the valley of St. Jose, attacked him, and completely routed his force, himself escaping to the town of Cucuta, mortally wounded, where he died, & was interred at 11 o'clock at night. His death was inadvertently made public shortly after by an officer from the interior, when he was imprisoned and cut off from all communication.

Private accounts received in this city, state, that gen. Bolivar had been well received at Venezuela, and made president; and that admiral Brion commenced his functions on the 1st of this month as governor of Marguerrita.

Extract of a letter from Port Maria dated the 25th inst.

"On Sunday evening a dreadful gale from the northward again set in and is still blowing violently, with a tremendous sea."

We are sorry to state a fire broke out on York estate, in St. Thomas in the East, a few days ago, owing to a negro burning off the wood of his ground, which destroyed 60 or 70 acres of canes, five negro houses, and the hospitals, before the progress of the flames could be arrested; only five acres of the canes were the spring plant for this crop.

ST. JAGO DE LA VEGA, MARCH 20.

The British schr. Providence, capt. Wyatt, which sailed from Curacao about a month ago, bound to St. Domingo, fell in with a Venezuela privateer, to leeward of the aforesaid island, soon after sailing, commanded by a black man of the name of John Pierre, having about 50 men on board and one gun; which fired at the Providence, compelling her to heave to, when she sent a boat on board, and searched the vessel, but finding her in ballast, with only one punchon of rum, they forcibly took the same from her, tendering afterwards an order on a house in Kingston for the amount. After this they seized the mate of the Providence, an Englishman named Lewis, who has relations in Kingston, sent him on board the privateer, and then hung him up by the neck to the yard-arm for nearly ten minutes, when they cut him down and let him fall into the hold of the privateer; then they conveyed him on board the Providence in a lifeless state, and it was a full hour before he came to himself; the only excuse they offered for this most atrocious act was that they were oppressed with the belief that he was a Spaniard. An unfortunate Spaniard, a seaman who was on board the Providence, did not however escape with his life—this person was immediately on being discovered to be of that nation, hung up to the yard-arm till he was dead, and was then cut down and fell into the sea. There was only one white man on board, who was an American, all the rest of the crew were black and coloured of different nations. She carried a blue and red flag, and is a long, low, fine schooner.

MADRID, FEB. 15.

All means of even internal communication in this wretched country are so much obstructed, that little is accurately known respecting the insurrection of Valencia, an event that has already cost the lives of a considerable number of persons, in addition to those that have a tragic end in reserve. The garrison of that city has been changed, undoubtedly as a return for the unwillingness with which it contributed to quell the commotion. The extreme misery which reigns in every part of Spain is indelible particularly among the troops. The greatest part of the army is at present in Catalonia, where soldiers and labourers are literally dying with hunger. A new levy or conscription of 40,000 men is about to take place, to be enforced without any exception of class. They are intended to replace the old soldiers, whose time is out, and on whom possibly the greatest reliance cannot be placed. However, what the present moment, most occupies the attention of the public, is the armament making in Portugal. If we can judge from the provisions collecting, and the magazines forming in Valadoid, it is not unlikely that part of these troops are on the eve of entering our territory, in which case, Spain would also be blessed with an army of occupation. On this subject great, and I may add, unfounded apprehensions are entertained.

We are assured that the illustrious deputy of the late Cortes, Garcia Herreros, lately died in his confinement at the presidio of Alcazar, on the coast of Africa. The hardships he experienced during his previous captivity for nearly 2 years in the dungeons of Madrid, had so much debilitated his health and preyed on his constitution, that it was impossible for him long to survive the horrors of a fortress, which, from its insalubrity and want of supplies, even of water, is not suitable for the punishment of the very worst malefactors."

In pursuance of a resolution of the general assembly of Virginia, passed the fit, acting as lieutenant governor, in the presence of the governor, by and with the advice of the council of state, to appoint and the sum subscribed by each; and not to allow any individual to subscribe

In the performance of this last act of gratitude to the Father of his country, no considerations need be urged in favor of the laudable design of the legislature to secure from the commissioners the utmost diligence on their part to carry it into full execution. Every Virginian will take delight in the performance of any duty, the object of which is to do honor to the memory of the venerated Patriot, whose life was devoted to the service of his country, and whose rare virtues and example have secured the applause of the ## Seminary.

T. PROWETT.

MOST respectfully acquaints his friends and the public in Alexandria, that he intends opening a SEMI-NARY for young Ladies and Gentlemen on Wednesday, May 7, in the schoolhouse, on the green, between Mr. Thomas Vorell's and Col Simms's formerly occupied by Mr. John Paradise.

The branches which he professes to teach are such as are comprised in an English education, viz. Reading, Orthography, Writing, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Elocution, and the Elements of Geography.

Parents or guardians who feel disposed to place their children under his care, will, he humbly hopes, be fully satisfied with their improvement, being determined on paying the most sedulous attention in order to facilitate the progress of his pupils in learning, and to instil virtuous and religious principles into their minds.

The most satisfactory references for character and abilities can be produced.

The desks and benches will be so arranged as to prevent the different sexes interfering with each other, and they will enter at different doors. The ladies will be dismissed at least ten minutes before the boys.

No boys above 12 years of age can be admitted.

For terms, which will be liberal, please to apply at the Seminary.

The Paradise of Coquettes,

A POEM, in nine Parts. A second edition of this elegant Poem is just published and for sale by the Subscribers.

The character of this Poem is thus given by the Quarterly and Edinburgh Reviewers:—

The Paradise of Coquettes; The character in which the poet professes to speak, is that of the POET OF WOMAN. He is supposed to be addressing woman, and woman only, and addressing her, 'on adventures of which she is the heroine, and on charms and graces, which it is the whole history of her beauty to have exercised with failure or success.'

His incontestable merits, and the assiduous care which he has bestowed upon the poem, deserve the warmest praise.

Quarterly Review, Oct. 1814.

We have here a little volume which may be fairly regarded as a prodigy in this age of quarto ballads, romances, heroics, and sentimental simplicity. It is by far the best and most brilliant imitation of Pope, that has appeared since the time of that great writer; with all his point, polish, and nicely balanced versification, as well as his sarcasm and witty malice. He is always at home—always lively and entertaining.

His satire is polished and yet pungent.

His versification, in particular, is almost invariably flowing & harmonious.

Edinburgh Review, Feb. 1815.

A vein of polite irony runs through the 'Paradise of Coquettes' which was familiar to the writers of the age of Anne and George the First, but has been discarded in making other modern improvements, by our contemporaries.

James Kennedy & Son.
